A message from Mrs Gum

Time is passing far too quickly and when we return after the half term break there are only 7 weeks left of the academic year! School staff are busy making the necessary transition arrangements, not only for our Year 6 children moving to secondary school but also for children throughout the rest of the school. It is hoped that we will be able to communicate the school staffing structure to parents very early in the next half term and we will then inform parents of their child's class for September in a timely manner. There is such a lot to cram into the final weeks. The huge numbers of children absent from school due to family holidays is having a significant impact on children's relationships, social interactions and emotional well-being. Whilst a few days in an adult's life seems like nothing, school does not stand still. After a few days or a week out of school, not only have children missed vital learning, they have missed key social interactions and events.
